Might Be Different in Germany.

The two opposing literary societies at Chemawa had an interesting debate Thursday evening when they discussed the subject: "Resolved, That the United States has produced greater men than Germany."

The affirmative was a the hands of the young ladies, whose speakers were Miss Ella Brewer, Alice Williams and Tills Souvenir. Those on the negative were John Benson, Robert Cameron and Levi Sorter. Judges, W. P. Campbell, C. Cooper and John Beck, all members of the school faculty. The debate was an exciting one, and the decision of the judges, given after some hesitation, was that the young ladies had won. Assistant Superintendent Campbell, who has been connected with the Indian schools for over 20 years, pronounced it the best debate he had ever heard in an Indian school.

Baseball.

This afternoon on the University field the high school team will cross bats with the Dallas college team. A fine and close contest is expected, as both teams appear to be evenly matched. Dallas defeated the high school boys last Saturday by a narrow margin, and today the tables are to be turned. Batteries, H. S. Jones, Keens; Dallas, Meyers and Reynolds.

Oysters in Place of Scallops.

Tonight the Indian Y. M. C. A. at Chemawa, is to have a unique social. The association members, numbering over 60, have divided into rival camps, and will hold two campfires in the woods. Races, wrestling and various sports will be contested, and the side winning the greatest number of points will eat oyster stew, while the losers will indulge in bean soup. Both sides will be supplied with Easter eggs ad infinitum. The boys are looking forward to a good time.

Chemawa Is All Right.

The Y. M. C. A. reading room in Mitchell hall, at Chemawa, is now in splendid running order, and is daily visited by a large number of students. The illness of Mrs. Charles A. Strong, daughter of old Rockefeller, is said to be a matter of grave concern in the Rockefeller family.

Williamette Beats Dallas.

Williamette University opened the baseball season yesterday afternoon by wrestling a victory from the Dallas college. It was a good game, too, and the victory song echoed to the tune of 5 to 0 in favor of the University's representatives. The attendance was good considering the contest had been but meagerly advertised. As a whole the contest was a clean exhibition of the great national game. Up to the fourth inning there were nothing but zeros on the blackboard, until Carey, the University's first baseman, slid across the home plate, amid great enthusiasm from the supporters of the local team. In the fifth more goose eggs were recorded. But in the sixth inning two more runs were placed to the credit of the Salem boys, and in the seventh two additional scores were given to the home team. Then the fireworks stopped. For Dallas, Reynolds, behind the bat, and Boydston, at first, played star ball. While Rader, Nace, Cary and Coleman did brilliant work for the locals.

High Pressure Days.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Never were the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high pressure days.

An Improvement in Tramway Rails.

Consul Hamm of Hull sends the following description of a demonstration given in Leeds, England, of a simple yet very useful invention connected with the tramway track: The present method of making tram rails is to make them in one piece lengths. It is only the upper surface which receives any wear, and when this is worn out the whole rail and concrete bed have to be torn up and a totally new equipment put down. The invention separates the rail into two parts—separates the wearing surface from the permanent girder support. It allows of the renewal of the wearing surface when necessary without pulling up the whole of the roadway or interfering at all with the under girder, which is tied down to the concrete bed. Under this system the renewing of tramways apparently becomes as

Fourth Advantage and Feature of the Racycle

Is in having the crank-hanger Dust or Dirt proof, that is, in having the bearings so constructed that the dust cannot get into the ball cups to absorb the lubricant and finally ruin the easy, smooth running quality of the bearings. In the Racycle the cranks are recessed so as to place the bearings out in the cranks, and at the entrance of this recess felt washers are placed for the purpose of preventing the dust or dirt from entering the bearings. These felt washers hug around the ball cups, making it impossible for any foreign substance to get into the bearings. Should dust or dirt get past the felt washers its further progress is hindered by the oil-charged magazine.

easy as resoling a worn pair of boots. The invention is not in the rails, but in the machine—requisite for combining the two sections effectively. One locomotive carries the three machines that are necessary, one machine for rolling on the upper rail and two for cutting it off when it is worn out. The wearing portion of the rail fits down over the lower portion, the rolling-on machine bending the depending flanges inward so as to grip the supporting rail. These depending flanges are converted into cold rolled springs, with an inward grip so intense that at a grip made by the Sheffield Test Works the adhesion of the top section to the bottom section in a length of only one foot was found to be 23 tons. The cutting machine cuts a groove into one of the depending flanges of the rail to a depth of one third or half the thickness of the rail, while the breaking off machine applies to the two flanges breaks off the depending flange, thereby releasing the lower rail. These operations do not in any way injure or disturb the side section. If each time a renewal of the rails is necessary the cost of taking up the whole of the track is avoided they must be a great saving, and the general manager of the Leeds plant estimates this economy at 53 1/2 per cent. Another great advantage claimed for the system is that the work of renewal can be done very speedily and involves so small an amount of material on the road that the wheels very little interfered with.
